Year of prayer

A Prayer of Praise

Praise to You, Father for the innocent eyes of children for sunlight and flowers and snowfalls for muscles of men who build houses and hospitals and harbors for the minds of scholars who unfold the truths of the universe for the hearts of parents who teach us to love.
We praise You for what we have.
We praise You, too, for those things that Your wise love has decided to withhold from us.
What we are and have is from You.
And our grateful response can only
Be to share these treasures
With all Your children.
And praise to You, too, Father for so many brothers and sisters.

Amen

“Amazing grace, how sweet the sound, that saved a wretch like me.”

It is (ironically) written that words upon a paper die the moment the ink strikes. The birth of life portends its' inexorable end. Words capture a moment and perhaps, if everything is right, they make some impression. The lips may quiver; a tear or two drop upon the paper. Words come from life. The influence of a life, if everything is right, can go straight on to the soul. It is from this perspective these words manifest. May they settle in the heart of the reader. May they meet you in this moment exactly where and how you are. Without judgment, cause, or favor. Only love.

On Good Friday (it used to baffle me how such an event can be associated with the concept of goodness) I limped to Crawfordville and the Doc-In-Box. It was my second visit in just three months and the same big toe and the same ingrown toenail was once again acute. A little anesthetic, some excavating and of course well-intentioned trauma, and the agony was gone. Upon my departure I reflected to the staff, “Here I am, fussing over a hurt toe, when on this day, we remember one whose feet was bound to a tree with nails”. The room turned silent.

Two years and a few more big toes ago, Crawfordville was my destination following the end of a long and successful marriage (twins, early 20's) and a satisfying technical career. It was time to find a sailboat and complete my life, alone in the arms of the ocean, who I have grown to love since boyhood. So I did that, and my sails eventually blew me to Carrabelle. My heart sought roots in the rich soil in which I had been planted, and this included reviving and activating a Faith whose Catholic basis had languished. Not that I have failed to live out the principles into which I had been raised and encouraged, but to bring some order, depth and challenge to my spiritual life. There was a need to get upon the knees, to exercise the voice in prayer, to once more experience the rich and deeply meaningful kinesthetic that the Catholic faith offers, and to humble myself like the dust from which all has been formed.

The winds took me to Sacred heart Catholic Church where I met an inspiring and holy man, Father Raj, whose eyes, radiant smile, warmth and watchful promise impressed me immediately. Deacon, the knights, and the sweet parishioners of the “mother” church, SEAS, all told me that I was in the right place, at the right moment, and with the right attitude.

It is said that your attitude determines your altitude: if you think you can't, you won't. I believed, with everything in me, that I had found a place of peace and humility. Just to be truly grateful is a blessing. Now that I was here, it was time to return to the knees; to let go and let God.

That Good Friday, the Doctor at my feet could have been the one to wash them. Jesus is my healer, and you, dear Parishioners and Priest, act in His temporary physical absence. When you rise from the knees, you manifest His love in your world. I am so grateful to have found you and to have your example to follow. I am so thankful for the opportunity to be encouraged, and to encourage. So serve and be served, as folds in the same blanket. To rise, every day, into the potential that my creator has formed.

Long ago, I tried to correct what I perceived as the cosmic mistake of my own life: not belonging here and having little in common with others but the Air, Earth and Water. So, on a bitter freezing January, North Atlantic Ocean, cold midnight, I planted myself in an expertly-timed location where the incoming tide would find me and I could return to Mother Ocean. Eventually the surf came. It was oddly warm. It rose to my chest and I felt the movement, to the Sea and back to the Earth, as the waves so flowed. At some moment, the remainder of which I still cannot remember, I glanced at the water and found myself surrounded by a soft blue-green glow. Millions of iridescent Sea creatures had circled “round”. Perhaps they will carry me on? That was the last memory.

The next remembrance is of being on dry, cold, frozen land, sitting and shivering, then laughing and crying.
